THE RADICAL CONVENTION. Elsewhere we publish the proceedings of the Radical convention. It was composed mostly of negro delegates. The black mass was speckled with a few Chicago Ablaze Again—Thou and Benwhite faces so crimsoned with shame that they afforded no relief to the dark and gloomy picture. The number of delegates was small; the crowd of spectators was small; there was no enthusiasm, while everything was as sad and dreary as a funeral. We were fercibly struck with the war that was made in the convention upon the Irish, showing, as it did most conclusively, the batred which the Radicals cherish toward this nationality. Not a word was said in the convention yesterday against native Americans, negroes, Germans or Italians, but the names of Irishmen were bandled about as if they were all knaves and traitors. Colonel L. R. Dyer denounced Mr. James Reiliey, an Irishman, as a traitor; J. A. Moon, a coloved delegate, assailed Mr. Mulvihill. and said "he had proved a traitor to the party, having been electhissed and kicked out of the convenzion. A weaker ticket was never nomimated by any party in Shelby county. The Bartlett ticket towers above it in all

t, we elements of strength. Garrett, the not vince for sheriff, commanded negroes during the war; they are still his constant companions, and the aroma he inhales by the association is to him sweeter that the haim of a thousand flowers. He ish nown in Memphis as a professional offic seeker, and the idea of beating C. L. Anderson with him is ridiculed by the tex-paying people of Shelby. General Patterson, the nominee for county trustee, is another sediment deposited in Memphis by the receding tide of war. He hates the white southern people with all the in ensity that fills the bosom of an adventurer anxious to get office, but he will learn by the result of the August election that the white tax-paying people of Shelby county care as little for him as he does for them. General Patterson is already an office-holder under the general government. His election would involve innumerable law-suits, and he can never description loaded to their utmost cathe white tax-paying people of Shelby execute a bond which the magistrates of Shelly county can accept. The idea of the store-keepers, who are so fortunate the Palmer house, and the consternation Shelly county can accept. Such a result would be a shame be found it is at once filled with goods bous. Such a result would be a shame lous. Such a result would be a shame and a disgrace to the county of Sheiby, of all descriptions and variety. Men, women and children are doing their utmost to save their little all, and bringmost to save the building. The SOUTHERN BOUNDS OF THE FIRE are now at No. 475 Wabash avenue, just only fully made up. Both parties are up as much in cone five minutes as it has previously in fifteen, considering the street, on the corner of Peck court and Wabash avenue is the only point where ware great, and there is no doubt that. The Issues are 'word and distinct. From Carter to Shelby-in every county in the State, mixed schools is will have to mourn made the vital question of the hour. We have no fears so far as other conn-

If any man in Shelby county, with a white skin, has made up his mind to vote for these nominces who support mixed schools, all the arguments that could be addressed to him from now until doomsday would not influence his conduct, bec ture such a man most necessarily be densi to every consideration but that of prejudice and personal interest, which he hopes to promote by deserting his race. But this ticket can be defeated. The discatisfaction at the unfortunate nomination of Greeley, the division between Cheatham and Joh, son, prevented anything like organization, and Democrats and Conservatives, in that election, imiinted the admirable policy of sheep, who, when the wolf invades their field, lie down and unrecistingly permit the enemy to do his worst. But things have changed. According to the census, the white vote in Tennessee is more than double that of the negro vote, and the whites of the State must, and its employes will have all they can do to save the mail matter in the buildings, and consequently there will no mails leave the city this evening, and there can, by no possibility, be one sent before to-morrow evening should the department be successful in saving their valuables. The principal lines of the Western Union telegraph company, running through State street, have been burnt ger, there will be no interruption of tele-graphic communication. It is very probable that the fire will be stayed where it is. Considering the area burnt over the losses to ering the area burnt over, the losses to insurance companies are very light, al-though hundreds of families have LOST THEIR ALL, and have been rendered house-less and homeless. As the good suffer with the bad on many occa-sions, so in this instance the bad have suffered with the good, and proba-bly that section of the city would not have been purified of its sinus so effect-ually and thoroughly in the next fifty years to come as it has this evening in years to come as it has this evening in the space of three hours. So, on the whole, Chicago has not only had another big conflagration, but a great purification as well, as will in the end be much the better for it by securing in the district burnt wider streets and more substantial buildings, compared with hose lost. The fight with the fire is now on State street and Watash avenue, between Van Buren and Harrison streets. The flames seem to be slowly giving way to the persistent efforts of the firemen, and it is hoped that it can be stayed before long. The St. James botel is the last building that has commenced to burn, but as the fire department can concen-trate its efforts on the particular locality indicated above, the spread of the fire will be more readily checked.

THE FIRE GAINING. Contrary to the hopeful expectations Contrary to the hopeful expectations expressed at haif-past eight o clock, the fire has gained upon the fire department, and, in spite of all efforts by our whole fire department, at haif-past ten o'clock the fire bail progressed northward and taken in the block on the east side of State street, which were low wooden buildings, and on Wabash avenue, north from Hartison attent one block and from Harrison street, one block and a half, taking in both sides of the street, and working over along on Michigan avenue to the north, toward the Exposition building. The fire is at present between Van Buren and Jackson streets in its northern limit, and surning with great flerceness. At pres ent the fire is apparently

The fire originated in a paint manufacturing shop on the corner of Twelfth and Clark. Some workmen were mixing paint, and an explosion occurred which ignited the building. On the north the fire has broken out on the corner of Michigan avenue and Congress. The Michigan Avenue notel is on fire, and it is probable the Exposition building and art gallery can be saved. On State street the fire has passed Jackson, and is within one block of the Palmer house. On Wabash ave nue it is almost up to the corner of Jack-son, and the Mattison house is in imminent danger. A FIREMAN KILLED. One fireman has fallen through a roof, and was killed by the fall. A police-man had his leg broken while attempting to rescue a boy. One engine belong-ing to the colored men has been burned. STILL RAGING.

At ten minutes past twelve o'clock the wind being westerly, the fire was confined to very near Van Buren street, on the north. Gilbert & Sampson's furniture warehouse on Wabash avenue, running through to State street, was on fire, but with a fair prospect of subduing it. The Gardiner house, before mentioned as being burned, should have been the Michigan Avenue hotel, which is situated on the corner of Congress street. The Gardiner is safe, as is also some half dozen large stores on the east side of Wabash avenue and south side of Van Buren street. The building occupied by the Spureman & Hand marble company, corner of Michigan avenue and Van Buren street, occupied and south of it succumbed to the flames. Van Buren street seems to be about the northerly line of the fire, although some buildings were destroyed north of that, there being only the lake to the east of the ottest of the fire, with the wind rather toward it, has done a large share toward making our losses lighter than would otherwise have been the case. The fire appears now principally confined to the MICHIGAN AVENUE HOTEL, and when that is finally burned down, there will be little else but ruins to mark the course of the fire.

JOHN MITCHELL.

The Old Patriot on His Way to Beard of Ireland's Hopes.

NEW YORK, July 14 .- John Mitchell, the exile, who sails to-day for Ireland to engage in the politics of that country, says that no good can come to Ireland from the British parliament, and that Ireland can never be prosperous or happy till she has complete control of her own destinies, and her connection with England entirely severed. With regard to the present home-rule government, he thinks it does not represent the hopes and aspirations of the people; that it is a sickly and nerveless effort to patch up the national quarrel in an incomplete and unsatisfactory manner. He considers the whole movement a mere milk and water kind of national effort. He will not place himself in antagonism with the home-rule movement, but he to the world that there is something land than the bome-rule. He has a firm conviction that England will never grant self-government to Ireland till forced to do so, and that all her delusive concessions to Ireland have been wrung from her by force or fear of it. He himself will seek the suffrages of the peo-ple on the broad principle of Ireland's right to complete independence. He has a belief that the British government will not arrest him; but should they do so, he is prepared to take the

The dam appeared to him at that time all right, but noticing that the water was rising very rapidly, he bethought him that nossibly noticing that the water was riving very rapidly, he bethought him that possibly the dam on the little glose pond on a small brook emptying into this reservoir had given way, and he went up there to investigate. The warning was quite swift enough, giving at least ten minutes for the escape of men, women and children to the hillside. At the end of about ten minutes the flume gave way and a well of water sixty feet wide, covered with caps of snowy foam, rushed through Skinnersville with a roar, and descended Main street with more than the force of an Alpine avalanche. The terrified people, happily through the forethought of Deacon Mescham, stood on the hillside in safety and watched the progress of the destroying wave in terror and apprehen-sion. Leaving Main street it branched eastward, rolled down in rear of house into Blush Hollow and on to the adjoinmighty force. At half past four o'clock in the afternoon it reached the lower dams. This influx broke the sec-ond dam, whose waters poured forth to add to the power of the wave. The waters carried away one wooden bridge in the center of the viltions of the dams and stocks of several manufacturing establishments, and quite ruined many fields and gardens. Below
